

Heather Kopp is an editor, bestselling author, and a Narnia fan since childhood. Her dozens of books include the God's Little Book of Guarantees series and the bestselling The Dieter's Prayer Book. She also coauthored Because I Said Forever. Kopp and her writer/editor husband, David, have five adult children and live in Central Oregon.

David Kopp is the founding editor of Christian Parenting Today magazine and worked with Bruce Wilkinson as his writing partner and editor on the bestselling The Prayer of Jabez, Secrets of the Vine, and other books. David grew up in a missionary family in Africa (where, as a proper British schoolboy, he sang "God Save the Queen!" every school-day morning).

Martin French grew up in the San Francisco Bay Area and graduated from ArtCenter College of Design in Pasadena, California. His clients include The Atlantic Monthly, Apple Computers, Inc., ESPN, the Grammy national music awards, and Scholastic. Martin has received awards of excellence from Communication Arts, Graphis, 3x3, and the Society of Illustrators which granted him the Gold Medal in 1999. He has illustrated five books including the award-winning The Song Shoots Out of My Mouth by Jamie Adoff. Martin lives with his family in the Pacific Northwest.
